Capt. Aly Elsayed is a Master Mariner and Senior Technical Advisor at The Nautical Institute, with over 25 years of experience in the maritime industry, including extensive service on oil and chemical tankers, pilotage, Tug and STS operation training. He specialises in human-centred design, maritime training, and the integration of technology in ship operations.

Aly is actively involved in international regulatory work at the IMO and technically leads research initiatives such as the STEER project, focusing on understanding how technology affects seafarers' performance, safety, and wellbeing.

His work aims to bridge the gap between system design and operational reality by bringing the voice of the seafarer into the development and implementation of maritime technologies.

Capt. Nikolaos Chrysomallis graduated in 2002 from Merchant Marine Academy of Aspropyrgos. Following a consistent, ten years onboard career on Tanker Vessels in a Greek reputable Company, he joined as DPA & HSQE Manager a newly introduced Tanker Management Company with the aim to also facilitate her new building program consisting of 10 Suezmax Tanker Vessels and 2 VLCCs.

In 2018, Capt. Nikolaos joined Tsakos Group, assuming the responsibilities of Deputy HSQ Manager supporting MTA (Maria Tsakos Academy) training scheme as well as instructor for incident investigation and Risk Assessment MTA courses. Holder of Master's A License, in 2022 he completed also his MBA in Shipping from Alba Graduate Business School.

In 2023, he was appointed as the Company's Compliance Manager, in Tsakos Shipping and Trading, having extensive knowledge, practical and hands on experience in incident & casualty investigations gained from his ashore roles, for more than a decade.
